Media Information

CREDENTIALS: Working press credentials for Carolina home games can be obtained by contacting Rick Brewer in the Sports Information Office. Brewer's mailing address is P.O. Box 2126, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

Requests are screened with care to insure a working pressbox. Children, spouses and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

FILING COPY: There are no Western Union facilities in the Carmichael Auditorium pressbox. The Athletic Department does furnish a number of telephones for writers to use in moving their copy. The Sports Information Office also has one telecopier which is available on a first-come, first-serve basis after each game.

PRESSBOX SERVICES: Programs and statistics will be provided before each game. A play-by-play will be distributed at the end of each half. Complete halftime and final boxscores will be provided. Coaches' quotes will also be available.

Sandwiches and soft drinks are available in the pressbox.

INTERVIEWS: Player interviews can be arranged by contacting the Sports Information Office. Generally, these interviews will be set up before or after practice in Carmichael Auditorium.

RADIO NETWORK AND TV SHOW: The Tar Heel Sports Network is one of the largest and best basketball radio networks in the nation. The network is operated by Village Companies of Chapel Hill with Jim Heavner as the producer. Woody Durham will handle the play-by-play with Henry Hinton adding color commentary.

The Carolina Basketball Show will be televised across the state of North Carolina each Sunday. Durham serves as emcee for this program which features Coach Dean Smith and game highlights.

1983-84 Outlook

With four starters, including a pair of first-team All-Americas, returning from a year ago, North Carolina should again be one of the premier teams in college basketball in 1984.

The Tar Heels posted a 28-8 record against an extremely difficult schedule last season, tied for first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season race and reached the Final Eight of the NCAA Tournament for an amazing third straight year.

Heading the cast of returning players off that team are two brilliant All-Americas, forward Sam Perkins and guard Michael Jordan. Each could be the best player in the nation at his position.

Also back is forward Matt Doherty, perhaps the most under-rated player in the entire ACC. Seven other lettermen also return, including Brad Daugherty who started at center most of the season.

Despite these returnees, the Tar Heels face some major challenges if they are to come close to duplicating the success of recent Carolina teams. In the last three years Carolina has had records of 29-8, 32-2 and 28-8. The Tar Heels were the NCAA champions in 1982, national runners-up to Indiana in 1981 and a regional finalist in 1983.

"It will be difficult to have the same type of record this year that we've had in the past three," says Coach Dean Smith. "A break here or there has helped us win so many close games in the last three seasons and I'm expecting most of our games to go down to the wire again.

"I do think we will have a very good basketball team. In Sam Perkins, Matt Doherty and Michael Jordan we have three men with a great deal of experience and ability. They should form the nucleus of our squad.

"Certainly, we will miss Jim Braddock, who did a fine job at the point guard position for us last year. But, we will pretty much be the same team that we were last season."

The problem is that while Carolina will have most of its players from last year back, so will several other teams in the ACC.

"I think our league will be stronger than it was last year when we had three teams in the NCAA's Final Eight," says Smith. "We really won't have a weak team in the conference."

Carolina won't see many weak teams outside the league, either. Nine of the Tar Heels' 13 non-conference games will be played against teams which were in post-season tournaments last year.

Faced with this difficult schedule, Carolina needs good play from Perkins, Jordan and Doherty. Smith figures to get just that.

Perkins, a 6-9, 235-pound senior from Latham, N.Y., heads into his final season as one of the most honored players in Tar Heel history. He won first-team All-America laurels at center as a sophomore and then duplicated that feat at forward last year. He finished tied for third in the voting for United Press International's National Player of the Year last season and was fifth in the Wooden Award balloting.

Perkins averaged 16.9 points a game last season and 9.4 rebounds. He shot 52.7 percent from the field and 81.9 percent from the free throw line. He finished seventh in the ACC in scoring, second in rebounding, fifth in field goal percentage and third in free throw percentage.

In addition, he has responded well in big-game situations. He was the most valuable player in the ACC Tournament as a freshman and had 25 points in the 1982 NCAA semi-finals against Houston. Last year he had a career-high 17 rebounds against Wayman Tisdale and Oklahoma and a career-high 36 points at Virginia.

"Sam has had a tremendous career at Carolina," says Smith. "Sometimes it's easy to take him for granted because he's been so consistent. He's become better defensively each year he has been here as evidenced in part by his increased number of blocked shots. I anticipate continued defensive improvement. He has increased his strength in the last year and that should help on the boards."

Jordan and Virginia's Ralph Sampson were the only unanimous first-team All-Americas last season. The 6-6, 189-pound junior from Wilmington, N.C. was selected National Player of the Year by the Sporting News and was runner-up to Sampson in voting for the Wooden Award, UPI's National Player of the Year and ACC Player of the Year.

Jordan led Carolina in scoring with a 20.0 average and was second to Perkins in rebounding with a 5.5 average. He made 53.5 percent of his field goal attempts and 73.7 percent of his free throws. A fine defensive player, he led the Tar Heels with 76 steals.

Like Perkins, Jordan seems to be at his best in the big games. He was the last-minute hero in several games last year and, as a freshman, hit the game-winning jump shot in the 1982 NCAA Finals.

"Michael's improvement from a 6-1 sophomore junior varsity player in high school to now is incredible," says Smith. "I can't think of a better 6-6 player, offensively or defensively, in the country. He plays hard every game and works hard in practice. He is already an improved ballhandler from last year and he could be our best defensive player. He's the prototype big guard."

Doherty, a 6-8, 210-pound senior from East Meadow, N.Y., was the Tar Heels' third-leading scorer with a 10.5 average and also grabbed 3.8 rebounds a game. A fine shooter, he made 78.2 percent of his free throws, but surprisingly, just 43.8 percent of his field goal attempts.

However, statistics don't come close to telling his true value. Doherty is an excellent passer and ballhandler. In fact, he led the Tar Heels in assists last year. He was also voted the team's top defensive player and its best screener.

"Matt had a great year last season even though he didn't shoot as well as he's capable," says Smith. "His field goal percentage doesn't bother me because I know that with his work habits, it will be much better this year.

"His versatility and all-around skills have been invaluable to us. He can play either guard or forward. We may even have him bring the ball upcourt this season."

Daugherty is expected to join Perkins and Doherty on the front line. A 6-11, 240-pound sophomore from Black Mountain, N.C., he averaged 8.2 points and 5.2 rebounds last year. Although just 17 years old, he moved into the starting lineup in Carolina's 11th game and made steady progress during the course of the season.

While Daugherty will get first crack at the center job, he could be pushed for that position by Warren Martin. A 6-11, 240-pound junior, Martin played a great deal in a backup role last season and was quite effective in some games. He just needs to play with more consistency.

The race for Braddock's old point guard spot is wide open. The contenders there are Buzz Peterson, a 6-4, 185-pound junior from Asheville, N.C.; Steve Hale, a 6-3, 178-pound sophomore from Jenks, Okla.; and Kenny Smith, a 6-3, 170-pound freshman from the Queens, N.Y.

Peterson was Carolina's sixth man last year before injuring a knee at mid-season. Most of his action came at the big guard position where he averaged 7.2 points a game. Hale played in all 36 games as Braddock's backup.

Depth at the big guard and small forward positions will come from Cecil Exum, a 6-6, 206-pound senior from Dudley, N.C., and Curtis Hunter, a 6-4½, 190-pound sophomore from Durham, N.C. Hunter, however, missed valuable pre-season work with a foot injury.

Reserve help up front will be provided by Timo Makkonen, a 6-11½, 202-pound junior from Lahti, Finland; Dave Popson, a 6-9, 195-pound freshman from Ashley, Pa.; and Joe Wolf, a 6-10, 222-pound freshman from Kohler, Wis.

Because of its experience, Smith likes the defensive possibilities this team has.

"I think we will be a good defensive team," he says, "and, consequently, we should be a consistent team. I would like us to do a better job of rebounding and I think we will be a better shooting team than we were last year."

The Tar Heels hit 51.5 percent of their field goal attempts last season, but that was down from a mark of 53.7 in 1982. Part of that was due to the three-point field goal experiment tried by the ACC, but not all of it. That snapped a streak of 12 consecutive years in which Carolina had shot at least 52 percent from the floor.

One streak that wasn't ended last year was Carolina's amazing string of finishing either first or second in the ACC standings. That has now reached 17 years. No other school in any conference has ever finished first or second in its league for that many straight seasons.

Carolina could make that 18 this year. But, there will be fierce competition for those spots. Maryland returns everyone from a team which defeated Carolina easily in College Park and lost by just one in Chapel Hill. Wake Forest has lost just one starter and Virginia will again be very strong. Certainly, the Cavaliers will miss Sampson, but they defeated Houston without him last season and played well without him on other occasions.

Clemson, Duke and Georgia Tech should all be improved and Smith doesn't feel N.C. State can be discounted. The Wolfpack returns several key performers from last year's NCAA championship team.

"It should be an interesting season," says Smith. "Our seniors have been to the NCAA Finals twice and would obviously like to do it again. That will be most difficult. However, along with about 30 other teams, we are capable of getting there."

What Smith Says About:

"I think we will be a good basketball team. But, we're again facing a difficult schedule, playing 14 ACC games, plus away games at Syracuse, Arkansas, Stanford and Madison Square Garden. In addition, we play three pre-season Top 20 teams—Tennessee-Chattanooga, LSU and Missouri—at home.

"Basically, we'll be the same team that we were last year. We will miss Jim Braddock, who did an excellent job as our quarterback, but our other key people are back. Our new quarterback will be either Buzz Peterson, Steve Hale or freshman Kenny Smith. I think Buzz and Steve will be improved over last year and play with more confidence. While Kenny will be undergoing a period of adjustment, he is a smart, talented athlete.

"We didn't make the Final Four last year after playing in two straight national championship games so I think we will be mentally hungry. You have to be lucky as well as talented to get to the Final Four, but I think our seniors have dedicated themselves to getting back there for the third time in their four years here."

"In Sam Perkins we probably have the most consistent big man, game-in and game-out, we've had at Carolina. I really don't like to compare players, but his consistency has been amazing. Sam has improved every year he has been here and he's still improving.

"He has been a tremendous rebounder for us, as well as a fine shot blocker. I expect him to be our best pivot defender. However, he's so versatile we will also use him on some 6-4 and 6-5 people.

"Sam has a great shooting touch for a big man. If he doesn't score, it's because defenses are giving up a lot to stop him and that, of course, frees our other people.

"His leadership role will be more pronounced this year and that in itself should help his improvement."

"Matt helps us in so many ways. He led our team in assists last year and also was our best screener. Defensively, he's extremely intelligent and we're certainly counting on him to be one of our defensive leaders.

"Matt didn't shoot as well from the perimeter last year as in his first two years here. But, in fact, the whole team took shots we would not have taken in the past because of the three-point field goal. Matt will shoot well this year. His 78 percent free throw accuracy last year is a good indication of his shooting ability.

"We plan to use Matt in more of a backcourt role this season. We like to have him handling the ball on the break because he makes such good decisions."

"Top to bottom, I didn't think the ACC was as tough last year as it has been in the past. Still, we had three teams in the NCAA's final eight. I think that's an indication of the league's strength.

"This year's race should be an outstanding one. Most of the teams in the conference return their top players from last season. For example, Maryland returns its entire starting lineup. That's a team which defeated us in College Park and played us a one-point game in Chapel Hill.

"Virginia is used to winning and that will help them. Plus, they showed last year they can play well without Ralph when they defeated Houston with Sampson on the sidelines. N.C. State will again be a very good team. Charles, Gannon, McQueen and Myers now know what they're capable of doing and the mental part of this game is so important.

"Wake Forest lost only Alvis Rogers and will replace him with Kenny Green who played so well in the National Sports Festival. Georgia Tech and Duke played with a lot of young people last year and should be improved because of their added experience and good recruiting. Clemson has all of its young people back and will also have Vincent Hamilton.

"The league is so balanced that I can't imagine any team finishing last."

"We need to be a better rebounding team than we were last year. Improved rebounding has to be our number one goal. I think our rebounding can be better with the continued maturity of Brad Daugherty and Warren Martin and some possible help from Dave Popson and Joe Wolf.

"In our summer film study we discovered we weren't as good as we thought we were defensively last year. We will have to spend a lot of time on improving our individual defensive play. Our team defense was pretty good last season, but we had some individual breakdowns that must be eliminated.

"I'm concerned about not being a two-man team. In Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan we have two of the top players in America. I think we will see a number of different defenses aimed at stopping them and, consequently, we shouldn't have any trouble getting a good shot for our other people. We need input from them for that reason and also to help us arrive at the right chemistry.

"My biggest concern is the schedule. Basketball is so balanced today that it's tough to play so many good teams and not come out with an eight or nine-loss season."

"I can't think of a better 6-6 player in the country, either offensively or defensively than Michael Jordan. He improved over the summer, but he can continue to improve and I expect him to do that. He plays hard and he practices hard.

"Michael's play in the Pan Am trials last spring was truly outstanding. However, he didn't keep that up through the Pan Am Games. In the games I saw on television, Michael didn't play as well as he played last winter. I hope he can again reach the level at which he played in the Pan Am trials.

"He is a great athlete who can help you in so many ways. He's certainly deserved all of his individual honors."

"You have to have good players to have a good basketball program. Right now, it's easier for us to recruit those players. We're getting more publicized players than we once did. Of course, when that happens, there's a tendency for expectations to be too high and consequently, you sometimes don't do as well. But, I've been in situations where we didn't have truly outstanding players and I do prefer the way things are now.

"Because of Carolina's academic reputation, our basketball success and the fact our players graduate, other young people become interested in coming here. Then we can be more selective in our recruiting. I know a lot is made each year about the number of high school All-Americas that some schools get. Certainly, a few of the hundred high school All-Americas go on to become college All-Americas, but the vast majority do not. That's why I don't pay attention to those teams.

"The consistency of our teams can be traced to the willingness of our players to sacrifice for teams goals. We've also had players who enjoyed playing defense and were willing to listen to the coaching staff on how to improve defensively.

"There are several reasons why the graduation rate of our players is so high. First, our school dictates our admissions policy. Secondly, we look for young men who realize their main goal in college should be to get an education. Then when those players arrive on campus, we do everything we can to help them receive a true education.

"We have study hall and we allow players to miss practice if it's for academic reasons. We try to fly back as soon as possible after an away game so our players won't miss class. Although it costs more, we sometimes charter planes instead of flying commercially, just so our players won't miss extra class time. We constantly talk about their reason for being here—to get an education.

"But, again, the success we have in academic areas is just like the success we have on the court—it goes back to the players themselves. They have to want to succeed and we've been fortunate that our players have. It's a record of which we are very proud."

Carolina Basketball Is Something Special

Carolina basketball! The words almost explode. The last minute victories; those compromises with defeat; the electricity of anticipation. Carolina basketball has created a binding force for the people of our Old North State - not just students and alumni - but for people everywhere from Manteo to Murphy as Our Team strives for another victory, another championship.

What has become in these Dean Smith years the tradition of Carolina basketball is something that reflects properly much of what we want The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill to be.

Carolina basketball is played hard, played well and played honestly. Young men who have represented Carolina on the team have gone on to the professional league, but others have become physicians, lawyers, ministers, businessmen, have entered many walks of life. They have represented their University well... as alumni, holders of degrees. They not only have played here, they received their educations here. That is the tradition of Carolina basketball—the student/athlete.

Intercollegiate athletics has an important place in today's universities. Of course, it provides a rallying point for alumni, students, faculty, staff and friends to help focus their affection for this institution. In addition, it continues to provide a means for young men and women to receive a college education. We hear too often about the abuses of athletics, about athletes not required to attend classes, about athletes who leave school at the end of their final season without degrees. We hear about the so-called hypocrisy of intercollegiate athletics. We hear little about the positive side of college sports.

The Carolina basketball program is recognized as a winning program, but it is much more. Since Coach Smith's arrival in 1962, some 121 of his players have received degrees. Other universities can cite similar experiences but how little we hear about the positive influence of intercollegiate athletics in higher education. How little we hear of the men and women in the minor sports who have played their way into a scholarship-aided education and have gone on to productive, useful lives largely because they did have some ability in sports.

At Carolina, we have kept sports in a constructive perspective. Academics come first. Academics must come first at a University. Our coaches are teachers who help mold young people in the rigors of competition and discipline, two factors in life where lessons learned on the playing fields are lessons that will be drawn upon for many years. I believe we have been successful in this down through the years.

Tradition and history are very important in Chapel Hill. We do not dwell on what was, our concerns are mainly on what will be. This University has a long reputation of excellence in teaching, research and public service. Excellence also is a tradition when Carolina teams enter the fields and arenas of competition with other universities. Our athletes carry with them that requirement of excellence. At Chapel Hill our dedication continues to be the education and nurturing of the whole person and sport is a vital part of life and society. We expect no less of our student/athletes than that they take from us what we can give... an education befitting the Carolina tradition of service to our state, our nation, our society.

These young men and women of our varsity teams play today, so that they may help all of us tomorrow.

Christopher C. Fordham III
Chancellor

Chancellor Christopher Fordham

In the four years that Dr. Christopher C. Fordham III has been chancellor, the University of North Carolina and its reputation for excellence in academics, research and service have flourished.

The recently published report of the National Academy of Sciences and other similar and dissimilar documents have placed the University among the top two dozen colleges and universities nationally and among the top two or three — if not number one — in the South or Southeast. The University has been measured by its reputation among peers, the productivity of its faculty and graduates and its success in attracting federal and other outside funds for research and programs.

When Fordham was named chancellor, the Greensboro Daily News and Record reported that he saw his role as fostering continued excellence at a public school where the best in faculty and facilities were available to those of modest means. He sees that job in much the same light today, and Carolina's achievements under its sixth chancellor are indications that Fordham is succeeding in that role.

Fordham has called the undergraduate curriculum at Chapel Hill the core of the University. His commitment to undergraduate education has been apparent in his efforts to improve the curriculum through a series of changes — now being implemented — that strengthen mathematics and foreign language skills, and to impress upon students the importance of the liberal arts tradition.

He also has championed the cause of the public schools and guided the University to a leadership role in working to improve public education. The Lyndhurst Fellowship Program, which supports bright students who will be the best teachers of the future, and other innovative programs have received his special attention.

Fordham's devotion to his alma mater runs deep. He gave up a private medical practice in his native Greensboro to take his first position on the medical school faculty, beginning almost a quarter century of service to the University and the state. He also has been dean of the School of Medicine and vice chancellor for health affairs, the position he gave up to become chancellor.

The School of Medicine made substantial advances during Fordham's deanship. The programs were expanded, faculty strengthened and minority enrollment increased, and the school gained national prominence for its excellence and creativity.

In his tenure, the School of Medicine initiated a statewide regional education program — the Area Health Education Centers program — that has achieved international recognition as an educational approach to improving the distribution of physicians and other health professionals.

In all his administrative positions, a striving to reach consensus has characterized Fordham's management style. Before making decisions, he has sought input from concerned parties. He has not been afraid to delegate responsibility, and he has left fellow administrators a great deal of freedom to interpret his decisions. These qualities have won Fordham the support of faculty members and administrators alike.

A Greensboro native, Fordham comes from a family with long-held ties to Chapel Hill. He, his wife, their children, his father and uncles all attended the University.

He received his M.D. degree from Harvard Medical School in 1951 and first joined the Carolina faculty in 1958. In 1969 he left Chapel Hill to become vice president for medicine and dean of the School of Medicine at the Medical College of Georgia, but he returned to Carolina in 1971 as professor of medicine and dean of the School of Medicine.

"When one's University calls, it's a very magnetic pull," he later said of his decision to return to his alma mater.

In his professional life, Fordham has held a wide variety of prestigious positions at the University and on the regional and national levels.

He is a former member of the executive council of the Association of American Medical Colleges and a past chairman of the AAMC and the National Council of Deans and Southern Regional Deans.

A member of the National Academy of Sciences and its Institute of Medicine, Fordham also is a diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine, a distinguished service member of the AAMC, a fellow of the American College of Physicians and a member of the medical honorary, Alpha Omega Alpha.

He has been given distinguished service awards by both the N.C. Hospital Association and the N.C. Academy of General Dentistry.

At the University, he is a member of the Central Selection Committee of the John Motley Morehead Foundation and he has been honored by induction into the Order of the Golden Fleece.

He is an accomplished researcher and has written widely on health policy. He is the author of one book and numerous articles published in scholarly and professional journals.

Fordham is married to the former Barbara Byrd of Greensboro, and they have three daughters, Pamela Fordham Richey of New Bern, Susan Fordham Crowell of Chapel Hill and Betsy Fordham Templeton of Nashville, Tenn.

Athletic Director John Swofford

In just three years as director of athletics at the University of North Carolina, John Swofford has established himself as one of the most respected administrators in intercollegiate sports.

Although Swofford is beginning just his fourth year in charge of the Tar Heel athletic program, he has already been a part of some of the greatest moments in the school's storied sports history.

In his short time as athletic director, Swofford has seen Carolina teams win five national collegiate team championships—one in basketball and two each in lacrosse and women's soccer. The Tar Heel football team has won three straight bowl games and Carolina has finished in the Top 20 in both football and basketball in each of Swofford's three years on the job. Carolina has also either won or tied for first place in the race for the Carmichael Cup, symbolic of overall athletic excellence in the Atlantic Coast Conference, for the past three years.

Swofford's first three years as athletic director have been busy off the field, too. Carolina has conducted a $30,000,000 fund-raising drive to construct a student activities center which will include a 22,000-seat basketball arena; Boshamer Stadium was expanded and dressing rooms renovated for the Tar Heel baseball team; three new holes were constructed at Finley Golf Course; the University hosted the ACC Baseball Tournament three times and an NCAA regional tournament once; Carolina has hosted the NCAA Golf Championship, the AIAW National Soccer Tournament and the AIAW National Softball Tournament; the academic support staff has been expanded; and a new five-year radio contract was signed with Village Companies of Chapel Hill.

His fine work in Chapel Hill got Swofford a spot on the NCAA Football Television Committee last year. That committee and the Division I Basketball Committee are generally regarded as the two most important in the NCAA organization. Swofford is serving on the committee as it tackles one of the biggest problems ever to face the NCAA—how to settle the dispute over football television rights.

These accomplishments are a good indication Swofford is well aware of the problems facing intercollegiate athletics and how to cope with them. But Chancellor Christopher Fordham knew that when he named him to replace Bill Cobey as athletic director on May 1, 1980. Cobey had resigned to pursue public office.

Swofford gives the credit for Carolina's recent successes to the people around him.

"We have an outstanding coaching, administrative and clerical staff, and with their help, our primary goal will be to continue the tradition of integrity and excellence that has been the trademark of Carolina athletics," he says. "Our athletic program is a part of a great university. It is a special place and we will strive to reflect her values and character.

"We will continue our commitment to a strong overall program and we will continually strive to operate on the principle that the student-athletes who are participants in our various sports are our greatest assets. We must be committed to their positive development as individuals while they are a part of our athletic program."

A native of North Wilkesboro, N.C., Swofford first came to Carolina as a Morehead Scholar in 1967. He graduated in 1971 with an A.B. in psychology and industrial relations.

He played quarterback and defensive back on Tar Heel football teams in 1969, 1970 and 1971. Those last two teams went to the Peach Bowl and Gator Bowl. He tied a then-school record against Vanderbilt in 1969 by throwing three touchdown passes in one game.

Swofford was named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll and Who's Who in College Athletics. He also served as president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes on campus.

In 1973 he earned a masters in athletic administration at Ohio University. In his time there Swofford served as a graduate assistant to the assistant business manager of athletics.

From 1973 to 1976 he was athletic ticket manager and assistant to the director of athletic facilities and finance at the University of Virginia. His duties in that job included directing all ticket sales, advertising and promotions. He also handled game contract settlements, stadium and coliseum operations and team travel arrangements.

He returned to Carolina in May, 1976 as assistant athletic director and business manager, handling all the athletic department's business affairs. Among his many other responsibilities were handling fund-raising affairs, team travel and the athletic dining hall. He also coordinated sports camps.

Although he remained assistant athletic director, Swofford dropped the business manager title and was named assistant executive vice-president of the Educational Foundation in January, 1979. In that job he was in charge of the overall financial structure of the athletic department. His position with the Educational Foundation involved general office procedures, membership services and fund-raising.

Swofford is a member of the National Association of Collegiate Athletic Directors and is on the Board of Directors of the Ohio University Athletic Administration Program. He is a member of the Board of Directors of North Carolina National Bank in Chapel Hill and the Board of Directors of The Village Companies Foundation. He serves on the ACC television, football and basketball committees.

A regular jogger, Swofford enjoys reading and tennis. He is married to the former Becky Owens of North Wilkesboro. They have two children, Autumn and Chad.

Tar Heel Tradition

When Michael Jordan was named National Player of the Year by The Sporting News last season, he became the sixth University of North Carolina player to receive such an honor.

Players like Jordan and teammate Sam Perkins, already a two-time All-America, are one of the reasons Carolina has one of the greatest reputations in college basketball. Mention the University of North Carolina anywhere in basketball circles and people immediately think of championship teams, All-America players and great coaching. Success on the basketball court has been a tradition here for over seven decades.

The first intercollegiate game at Carolina was played in 1911. Since that time the Tar Heels have posted a record of 1,289 victories against only 489 losses. Sixty-three of the school's 73 teams have had winning records.

Only Kentucky has won more games than Carolina and the Wildcats began playing the sport eight years before the Tar Heels. Kentucky and Carolina also have the best won-loss percentages in collegiate history.

Carolina is one of only six schools to capture both a National Collegiate Athletic Association championship and a National Invitation Tournament title. The Tar Heels won NCAA crowns in 1957 and 1982 and swept the NIT in 1971. Carolina also was voted national champion in 1924 with a 26-0 record.

Since the NCAA Tournament was first played, Carolina has been one of the most dominant teams in the game. The Tar Heels have made nine appearances in the NCAA semi-finals. Only UCLA with 13 appearances has been there more often.

Carolina has made seven trips to the Final Four in the last 17 years. In this period of time, again only UCLA (11) has made more. The Tar Heels have been to the Final Four on three occasions in the last seven years alone.

Carolina has won eight NCAA regional titles, including seven eastern championships. No one else has won more than three eastern crowns.

Atlantic Coast Conference teams have now made 16 trips to the Final Four. Carolina has accounted for exactly half of those appearances.

Despite the University's long and storied basketball past, the sport has become even more popular here since Dean Smith became the head coach. During the last 10 years Carolina has won more games than any other school in the nation.

The Tar Heels have dominated Atlantic Coast Conference basketball in a 17-year period stretching back to 1967. In that time Carolina has finished first in the ACC's regular-season race 11 times and second on the other six occasions. This 17-year period of finishing first or second in the conference standings has never been equalled by any other school in any league.

The Tar Heels have played in a national post-season tournament each of the past 17 years. The 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972, 1975, 1977, 1979, 1981 and 1982 teams won ACC Tournament championships and advanced into NCAA play. Carolina won NCAA regional titles in 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972, 1977, 1981 and 1982 and went on to the Final Four.

The 1970, 1971, 1973 and 1974 teams went to the NIT in New York. Those trips, of course, came before the NCAA Tournament was expanded to include more than one team from any conference.

Thus, no freshman class since 1963 has missed a post-season tournament at Carolina and only two, 1972 and 1973, have failed to go to the Final Four.

In the last 17 years Carolina has won 430 games and lost 106. That's roughly an average of 25-6 a season, one of the most amazing marks in intercollegiate athletics.

The Tar Heels have finished in the top 10 of one of the wire service polls 13 times in the last 17 seasons. Seven times the Tar Heels have finished the year ranked as one of the top four teams in America. Only UCLA has been there more often in this stretch.

Although the Tar Heels have gained a lot of notoriety for the four-corners offense they use late in some games, they actually rank as one of the nation's highest-scoring teams in recent years. Carolina runs one of the best fast breaks in basketball and has averaged 81.7 points a game since 1967.

However, the key to Carolina's success may be its changing man-to-man defenses. The Tar Heels mix their innovative and gambling scramble defense with their more conservative pressure man-to-man. In fact, Carolina's defense is so effective it actually helps the offense. Steals and easy layups have accounted for many Tar Heel points over the years. That's one of the reasons Carolina has the best shooting percentage in the country over the last 17 seasons. Carolina has hit at least 51 percent of its shots from the floor for an incredible 13 consecutive years. That percentage, of course, has also been helped by the unselfishness of the Tar Heel players in selecting only the best shots.

Carolina has managed these feats against the toughest opposition in the country. The Tar Heel schedule is annually ranked one of the most difficult in the nation with only nine games per year played in Carmichael Auditorium.

Many people refer to basketball as "a tournament sport" and the Tar Heels have excelled in tournament play. Carolina, in fact, has now won 49 tournament championships. The Tar Heels have competed in such tournaments as the Far West Classic in Portland, the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu, the Great Alaskan Shootout in Anchorage, the Sugar Bowl Classic in New Orleans and the Holiday Festival in New York City.

Carolina has had at least one player on each of the past five U.S. Olympic basketball teams. Larry Brown starred on the 1964 team which won the Gold Medal in Tokyo, Charlie Scott was a member of the 1968 championship team at Mexico City and Bobby Jones played on the 1972 team in Munich.

In the 1976 Games at Montreal, Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford all played key roles in the U.S. sweep of the Gold Medal. Al Wood starred on the 1980 U.S. team which posted a winning record in a series of games against NBA players.

There have been dozens of All-Americas at Carolina. Sixteen of them have played in the Dean Smith Era alone—Billy Cunningham, Bob Lewis, Larry Miller, Charlie Scott, Dennis Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain, Robert McAdoo, Bobby Jones, Mitch Kupchak, Tommy LaGarde, Phil Ford, Mike O'Koren, Al Wood, James Worthy, Sam Perkins, and Michael Jordan.

In the last decade UCLA and Carolina have had more consensus first-team All-Americas than any other schools.

Jordan's selection as National Player of the Year last season followed the naming of Worthy as Co-National Player of the Year in 1982. Other Tar Heels who were chosen the best player in America were Jack Cobb in 1926, George Glamack in 1940 and 1941, Lennie Rosenbluth in 1957 and Ford in 1978.

The crowds which turn out to see the Tar Heels play are proof of the sport's popularity in Chapel Hill. Every game is a sellout in Carmichael Auditorium. Students sleep at the auditorium the night before they are to pick up tickets just to be sure they get into the games. Educational Foundation members who contribute large amounts of money to the athletic program are limited to just two tickets. Faculty members have to go on waiting lists to get into games. Even the Tar Heel intrasquad games are 10,000 sellouts. That's why the University is now constructing a new 22,000-seat arena.

Most regular-season Tar Heel games are televised. Five Carolina games will be nationally-televised this year by NBC and CBS with many others being broadcast across the country on cable.

The interest in the program and the accomplishments of the team make it easy to see that nothing could be finer than basketball in Carolina.

Carolina Basketball International Style

When Sam Perkins, Michael Jordan and Matt Doherty played on United States all-star teams last summer, it marked just another year in which University of North Carolina basketball players have distinguished themselves on the international level.

Perkins and Jordan were among the biggest stars on the U.S. team which won the Gold Medal at the Pan American Games in Caracas. Perkins and Oklahoma's Wayman Tisdale were generally regarded as the Americans' most consistent performers in the Games, while Jordan was the second-half hero in a couple of come-from-behind victories.

Doherty played on the U.S. Select Team which toured Southeast Asia during the summer. All three of those players loom as top candidates for the U.S. Olympic Team in 1984 if they choose to go out for the squad.

If any of the three make the team, it will certainly be nothing new. The Tar Heels have been represented on the last five U.S. Olympic teams.

The first Tar Heel Olympian was Larry Brown, a backcourt star of the early 1960's. Brown played on the winning 1964 U.S. team in Tokyo. Charlie Scott starred on the 1968 squad which swept the Olympic title in Mexico City. Bobby Jones was a member of the 1972 team at Munich.

Four Tar Heel players—Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford—were on the 1976 Olympic Team. All played key roles in the Americans' six-game sweep of the Summer Games.

Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith coached the U.S. team that year and was assisted by Bill Guthridge, his top aide at Carolina.

Playing as a team and stressing defense, the Americans routed Italy in their first game. After edging a fired-up Puerto Rican team on two clutch free throws by Ford, the U.S. then whipped Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Canada in the semi-finals.

After Yugoslavia had beaten the Soviet Union in the other semi-final, the Americans then defeated the Yugoslavs again for the Gold Medal.

Al Wood was one of the stars of the 1980 U.S. squad. The Americans, of course, did not compete in the Summer Games that year because of the Olympic boycott. However, the U.S. team did compile a 5-1 record against professional competition in a series of exhibition games.

While the Olympics rank at the top of Carolina's international competition, there have been plenty of other star performances.

Tar Heel players have been prominent in the last four Pan American Games. Perkins and Jordan were the heroes last summer. Mike O'Koren was co-captain of the 1979 U.S. team which won the Gold Medal in Puerto Rico. Tommy LaGarde starred on the 1975 U.S. team and Robert McAdoo played on the American team in 1971.

In addition to his Pan American play, O'Koren also was a starting forward on the U.S. team which took part in the Gregarian Cup competition in Moscow in 1978.

LaGarde was a member of the U.S. Continental Cup team which played games in the Soviet Union, Greece, Yugoslavia and other parts of Europe in 1975.

Dennis Wuycik played on the U.S. pre-Olympic team which toured Europe in 1971.

In the spring of 1973, a Russian national team came to America, playing a U.S. all-star team. Two of the biggest stars in that series were George Karl and Bobby Jones.

Later that summer Karl became one of the first Americans ever to go to Mainland China. He was a member of a U.S. basketball team which played there and again was one of the American heroes.

In the fall of 1973 Kupchak played on the U.S. team which won the basketball championship at the World University Games in Moscow.

Carolina took its entire team to Madrid, Spain in 1971 and played in the International Christmas Tournament there. The Tar Heels swept past teams from Brazil and Spain before facing Real Madrid, the European champion, in the finals. In a game televised across Europe, the Tar Heels gave one of their finest performances to win the championship.

Carolina returned to Madrid in 1974, but was edged by the veteran Real Madrid team in the finals. The Tar Heels did pull a stunning upset, however, beating the powerful Cuban National Team on a last-second shot by Davis.

In 1979, Carolina took part in a Christmas Tournament in London. The Tar Heels played in Greece prior to this current season, winning four games against club teams from Italy and Yugoslavia and the Greek National Team.

In August of 1979, Jimmy Black, James Worthy and Perkins were chosen to play on the U.S. Junior World Cup Team in Brazil.

Carolina players have also made big names for themselves playing professional basketball in Europe. Doug Moe had the most success there, three times being selected European Player of the Year. Other Tar Heels who have played in Europe include Dave Chadwick, Kim Huband, Craig Corson, Donn Johnston, John O'Donnell, Donald Washington, Ed Stahl, Bill Chambers, Bruce Buckley, Tom Zaliagiris, Geff Crompton, Randy Wiel, Jeff Wolf, Rich Yonakor, Pete Budko, Tommy LaGarde, John Virgil, Chris Brust and Jeb Barlow.

Often goes unnoticed, but one of the most important members of the Tar Heel squad... An excellent fundamental player who does a lot of the small things that don't show up in a boxscore... Selected the team's best defensive player and best screener last year... Also led Carolina in assists with 150 while playing small forward... The Tar Heels' third-leading scorer with a 10.5 average... Also averaged 3.8 rebounds a game... Fine passer... Has a great deal of savvy... Has good peripheral vision... Fine shooter and ballhandler... May be used to bring the ball upcourt this season... Set to start at small forward, but is versatile enough to play big forward or big guard... Was used at big forward early last season... Scored a career-high 28 points against Clemson in the first round of the ACC Tournament... Hit 10 of 15 shots from the field in that game, including five of six from three-point range... Other top scoring games were 21 in a homecourt win over N.C. State and 21 at Maryland... However, he's a player who could go scoreless and still play a major role in the outcome of a game... Had a career-high nine rebounds in the season opener against St. John's and then again at Tennessee-Chattanooga... Handed out a career-high 10 assists in a homecourt victory over Clemson... Hit two free throws with three seconds to play to give Carolina an 80-78 win at Wake Forest... Averaged 9.3 points and 3.0 rebounds as a sophomore as Carolina swept to the NCAA championship... Was brilliant in the ACC Tournament that year... Scored 11 points and had four assists in the ACC championship game against Virginia... Hit three clutch free throws in the final 28 seconds to give Carolina its 47-45 win over the Cavaliers... Followed that up with another great effort in the East Regional... Scored 16 points against Alabama in the regional semi-finals and then added 13 against Villanova in the finals... Saw reserve action as a freshman... Missed nine games that year with a broken thumb, but still had a fine season... Averaged 6.0 points a game... Was outstanding in the NCAA West Regional that year with 16 points, five rebounds, three assists and two steals against Kansas State in the finals... Played on the U.S. Select All-Star Team which toured Southeast Asia last summer... Came to Carolina from Holy Trinity High School... Coached there by Bob McKillop and Dick Zeitler... His team won a state championship in his senior season... A fine student majoring in business.

Reserve player who has seen increased action in each of his first three seasons at Carolina... Has trimmed down somewhat since last season and should contend for more playing time this year at small forward... Also could be used at big guard... Appeared in 30 games a year ago... Scored 53 points in those games for a 1.8 average, grabbed 35 rebounds and handed out 18 assists... Came off the bench to score a career-high eight points against Clemson in the first round of the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament last March... Had a key offensive rebound in the closing moments of Carolina's 64-63 come-from-behind victory over Virginia... Has shown steady improvement throughout his Tar Heel career... A high school post man who has had to learn to play new positions as a collegian... Has good speed... Has improved his ballhandling and defense and needs to continue to work on those... Has been voted Carolina's most inspirational player in each of the past two seasons... Joins Jerry Vayda and Ged Doughton as the only players in Tar Heel history to be so honored by his teammates twice... No player has ever received that honor three times... Came to Carolina after a fine prep career at Southern Wayne High School... Coached there by Marshall Hamilton... Led his team to the state championship in his senior season and was selected the MVP in the state tournament... Majoring in recreation.

Sam Perkins

Height: 6-9 Class: Senior
Weight: 234 Hometown: Latham, N.Y.

Here is one of the most honored players in Tar Heel history... Already a two-time All-America heading into his senior season... Has a chance to join Jack Cobb (1924-25-26) and Phil Ford (1976-77-78) as the only three-time All-Americas ever at Carolina... First-team All-America last year on teams chosen by UPI, the U.S. Basketball Writers Association, the Naismith Panel, ABAUSA and ESPN... Made all the other All-America squads as either a second or third-team choice... Had been a first-team pick by the USBWA as a sophomore... Finished third in the balloting for Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year last season behind Ralph Sampson and Michael Jordan... Tied for third in the voting for UPI's National Player of the Year and was fifth in voting for the Wooden Award... Averaged 16.9 points a game and 9.4 rebounds for Carolina... Shot 52.7 percent from the field and 81.9 percent from the foul line... Was seventh in the ACC in scoring, second in rebounding, fifth in field goal percentage and third in free throw shooting... Had a team-high 65 blocked shots... Scored a career-high 36 points in a 101-95 victory at Virginia last season, hitting 12 of 17 field goal attempts (including four straight three-point goals)... Had a career-high 17 rebounds in a 77-69 win over Oklahoma... Played in 35 of 36 games and scored in double figures 31 times... Has always seemed to play well against the best opposition—Ralph Sampson, Pat Ewing, Akeem Olajuwon, Tom Chambers, Steve Stipanovich, Wayman Tisdale... Averaged 14.3 points and 7.8 rebounds as a sophomore as Carolina won the NCAA championship... Named to the all-tournament teams that year at the ACC Tournament, the Eastern Regionals and the Final Four... Was sensational in the NCAA semi-finals against Houston... Scored 25 points in that game, hitting nine of 11 shots from the floor, and grabbed 10 rebounds... Had 10 points and seven rebounds in the national championship game... Had been ACC Rookie of the Year as a freshman... Averaged 14.9 points and 7.8 rebounds in his initial season... Moved into the starting lineup halfway through that season and helped the Tar Heels reach the national finals against Indiana... Named MVP in the ACC Tournament that year, scoring 53 points in the three tournament games... Also named to the all-tournament team at the West Regional... Now has a career total of 1600 points, the 11th highest figure in Carolina history... Has 869 career rebounds to rank fourth there among Carolina's all-time leaders... Is shooting 57.2 percent from the field and 77.5 percent from the line in his career... Versatile defender who has guarded 7-4 players like Ralph Sampson and 6-5 players such as Brook Steppe... Good shot blocker and also does a good job of getting position to draw charges... One of the fastest learners ever in the Tar Heel program... Was the leading rebounder and third-leading scorer on the U.S. Gold Medal-winning team at last summer's Pan American Games... Only played two years of high school basketball... Grew up in Brooklyn, but played for Julius Grimindl at Shaker High in Latham.

Michael Jordan

Height: 6-6 Class: Junior
Weight: 189 Hometown: Wilmington, N.C.

One of the greatest players in the game... A first-team All-America on every squad selected last year... He and Ralph Sampson were the only unanimous first-team All-Americas... Named National Player of the Year by The Sporting News and Eastern Basketball... Second to Sampson in voting for the Wooden Award, UPI's National Player of the Year and Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year... Averaged 20.0 points per game for Carolina last season and 5.5 rebounds... Shot 53.5 percent from the field and 73.7 percent from the free throw line... Also had a team-high 78 steals... Second in the ACC in scoring and third in field goal percentage... Scored a career-high 39 points in a win over Georgia Tech at the Greensboro Coliseum... Last-minute hero in several Tar Heel victories... Sparked an incredible 11-point rally in the final four minutes to lift Carolina to a 64-63 win over Virginia... Scored the last four points of that game on a tip-in and a steal and dunk... Hit a last-second jumper after a steal to tie the game and force an overtime against Tulane... Carolina went on to win in triple overtime... Blocked a layup at the buzzer to preserve a 72-71 win over Maryland... Scored in double figures in 34 of 36 games last year... Matched his career rebounding high with 10 against Clemson in the ACC Tournament... Also had 10 as a freshman against Santa Clara... Was ACC Rookie of the Year in his freshman season... Averaged 13.5 points and 4.4 rebounds a game that year... Shot 53.4 percent from the field and 72.2 percent from the foul line... It was his 17-foot jump shot with 15 seconds to play that gave Carolina its 63-62 victory over Georgetown in the NCAA Finals that year... Although his final shot got most of the attention, he played a great all-around game that night, finishing with 16 points and nine rebounds... Had scored 18 points against Houston in the NCAA semi-finals... Named to the all-tournament team at the Final Four that year and the ACC Tournament... It was his four straight jumpers that brought Carolina from three down to the lead in the ACC Finals that season against Virginia... Has 1181 points (16.9 per game) in his career and 346 rebounds (4.9)... Was the leading scorer on the U.S. Pan American Team which won the Gold Medal in Caracas last summer... Had toured Europe with another U.S. all-star team two summers ago and also was the scoring leader on that squad... In addition to his scoring ability, also is a fine passer... An excellent offensive rebounder... Has the potential to be one of Carolina's best defensive players ever... A tireless worker in practice... Came to Carolina after a fine prep career at Laney High School... Played on the junior varsity there as a 6-1 sophomore, but then began developing rapidly... Coached there by Clifton Herring... Also was an excellent baseball player at Laney... Competed in the U.S. Olympic Committee's National Sports Festival after his senior year of high school.

Has seen limited playing time in his Carolina career, appearing in 12 games in 1982 and in 14 last season... However, a hard worker in practice... Has contributed to Carolina's basketball success with his work there against James Worthy, Sam Perkins, Brad Daugherty and Warren Martin... Scored a career-high eight points against Furman last year... One of the team's most popular players... Missed the entire 1981 season because of mononucleosis... Was awarded an extra year of eligibility because of that... Will graduate in May, but will come back to play in his fifth season while working on a masters in business administration... Started playing basketball at a late age in Finland... Played for Al DePorter, former Wake Forest assistant, at Vance Academy in Henderson, N.C... Played for the Finnish National Team in the summer of 1982 in a series of games in Poland and Saudi Arabia... An excellent student in business.

Could be a key figure on this Carolina team... Has worked hard in his two years in Chapel Hill trying to develop into a top-flight player... A diligent worker in the weight room and in Carolina's off-season running program... Has improved his speed over a year ago... Has great reach and good hands... Also possesses a nice shooting touch... Combined with his size and strength, those things give him the capabilities of a good college center... With continued hard work, could be a fine frontcourt player... Appeared in 19 games as a freshman, scoring 14 points and grabbing 16 rebounds... Missed a lot of practice time that year because of a stress fracture in a foot... Showed great improvement as a sophomore... Played in 35 games... Led the Tar Heels in field goal percentage by making 43 of 72 shots from the floor for a mark of 59.7 percent... Scored 110 points for a 3.1 average... Had 106 rebounds for an average of 3.0 per game... Also blocked 26 shots... Scored a career-high 10 points in a road victory at Georgia Tech... Top rebounding performance of his career came against Clemson in the ACC Tournament last March when he grabbed 11... Saw a great deal of action in that game as Sam Perkins was sidelined with an injury... Was the top substitute behind Perkins and Brad Daugherty at big forward and center... In the fight for playing time at those spots once again... Began developing into a fine player late in his career at Tunstall High School in Dry Fork, Va.... Howard West was his coach there... Enjoys reading science fiction and playing electronic games... A crowd favorite in Carmichael Auditorium.

Buzz Peterson

Height: 6-4 Class: Junior
Weight: 185 Hometown: Asheville, N.C.

After playing Carolina's big guard position for two years, Peterson now ranks as a leading candidate for the point guard position... Was a starter at the big guard spot early last year... Became Carolina's valuable "sixth man" when the Tar Heels went to a bigger lineup in late December... Continued to play as much as he had as a starter although he was coming off the bench... Did a fine job in both roles... However, had his season cut short by a knee injury in Carolina's 24th game... Suffered torn ligaments in a home game against Virginia and missed the rest of the season... Underwent surgery and rehabilitation and is expected to be full speed this season... Averaged 7.2 points last year... Shot 51.5 percent from the floor and 70.4 percent from the foul line... Was sensational in an early-season game against LSU... Made nine straight field goal attempts in the second half of that nationally-televised game to spark a Tar Heel come-from-behind victory... His 18 points that day is his career high... Was five of six from the field, including two three-point field goals, and scored 14 points in a big road win at Virginia... Played in 30 of Carolina's 34 games in his freshman season... Missed some early practice sessions with a foot injury that year, but came back to become a key reserve on the Tar Heels' national championship team... Came up with a big steal in the NCAA Finals against Georgetown... Scored 35 points that season for a 1.2 average... A good shooter... A fine ballhandler and passer... Has made great strides defensively... Has a unique knack for being in the right place at the right time... Has good speed... Played for Coach Rodney Johnson at Asheville High School... Named North Carolina's High School Player of the Year as a senior by the Associated Press... Played in the U.S. Olympic Committee's National Sports Festival following his senior year at Asheville and after his freshman season at Carolina.

Brad Daugherty

Height: 6-11 Class: Sophomore
Weight: 240 Hometown: Black Mountain, N.C.

Played in 35 of 36 games a year ago... One of the youngest players ever at Carolina... Began practice last year when he was only 16 years old... Saw reserve action early in the year before moving into the starting lineup at center in the Tar Heels' 11th game... That move enabled Sam Perkins to switch to his more natural big forward position and also sent Matt Doherty and Michael Jordan to their best positions... In addition, it gave Carolina more height in the starting lineup... Expected to be a top contender for the starting center spot again this year... Scored 287 points last year for an 8.2 average... Had 181 rebounds, averaging 5.1 a game... Made 110 of 197 field goal attempts for a percentage of 55.8... Had 36 blocked shots... Season scoring high was 18 against Duke... Scored in double figures 12 times... Top rebounding games were 13 against N.C. State in the ACC Tournament semi-finals and 11 at Virginia... Named second-team Freshman All-America by Basketball Weekly... Has the tools to be a fine player... Has unusually good speed for a big man... Played at Charles D. Owen High School... Coached there by Bill Burrows... Didn't play as a freshman, but was the team's student manager... Was on the junior varsity as a sophomore and on the varsity as a junior and senior... Led his Owen team to the state tournament in his senior season... Has an older brother, Steve, who played for Carolina assistant coach Roy Williams when he was the head coach at Owen.

Steve Hale

Height: 6-3 Class: Sophomore
Weight: 178 Hometown: Jenks, Okla.

Saw a lot of action as a backup to Jim Braddock at the point guard position last season... Now set to battle for that starting spot... A lefthander... Excellent passer... Played in all 36 games a year ago... Averaged 2.6 points a game for a total of 93... Also handed out 70 assists... Played an outstanding all-around game in an early-season win over Syracuse... Had a season-high nine points against the Orangemen, but also did a good job as a playmaker and on defense... Had a season-high five assists against The Citadel... Played on an Athletes in Action team which toured Europe last summer... Averaged 14.5 points on that tour, shooting 54.1 percent from the field and 80.0 percent from the foul line... Led that team in assists with 80... His father, Jerry, is the former head coach at Oral Roberts... First became interested in Carolina after seeing the Tar Heels defeat his father's team in the 1976 Far West Classic... A campus leader in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes... Outstanding student who hopes to go to medical school.

A hard-working swing player... Capable of being used either at guard or forward... However, has been hampered in the early part of his career by injuries... Missed 11 games at mid-season last year with a recurring foot injury from high school... Re-injured that same foot in a pickup game this past August... Underwent surgery at that time... It was hoped he would be ready for the opening game of the year, although he missed some valuable pre-season practice sessions... Played in 25 games last year... Scored 107 points for a 4.3 points-per-game average... Made 40 of 76 field goal attempts for a percentage of 52.6... Led the Tar Heels in free throw shooting, hitting 25 of 30 for a mark of 83.3... Scored in double figures four times with a high of 13 against Pan American in the Oil City Classic... Played for Coach Larry Parrish at Southern Durham High School... Named North Carolina's High School Player of the Year by the Associated Press after his senior season there... Played in the U.S. Olympic Committee's National Sports Festival in the summer of 1982... Played on the South's Gold Medal-winning team there and made the NSF all-star squad.

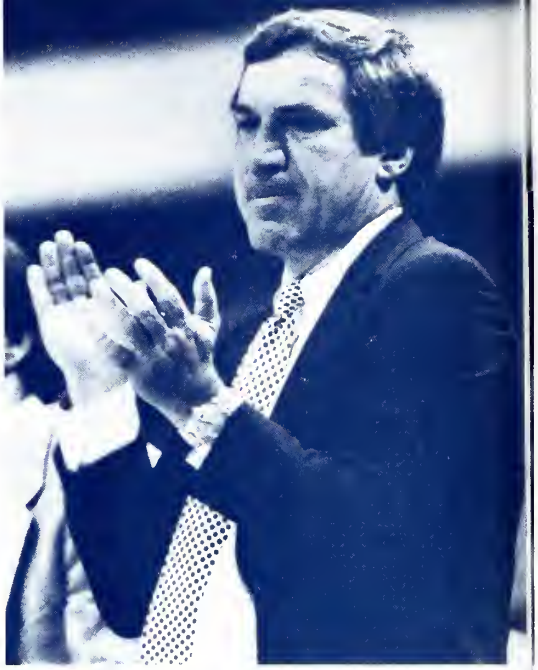
Dean Smith



The head basketball coach at the University of North Carolina is Dean Smith, one of the newest members of the Basketball Hall of Fame and a man who has accomplished almost everything imaginable in his sport.

Smith, who has completed 22 seasons as Carolina's head coach, has won 496 games in Chapel Hill and lost only 153. That's a winning percentage of .764, the seventh best mark in history of anyone who has coached at least 20 seasons on the major college level.

The only men ahead of him are simply Clair Bee, Adolph Rupp, John Wooden, Phog Allen, George Keogan and Frank Keaney. Of that group, only Rupp and Wooden have coached since 1960 or in the sport's modern era.

Teams coached by Smith have won an NCAA championship, a National Invitation Tournament title and an Olympic Gold Medal. The only other coach in history ever to accomplish that was Pete Newell.

Smith, who played for Allen at Kansas, is also one of only two men to play on an NCAA championship team and then coach one. Bobby Knight is the other.

In the last 17 years Smith's Tar Heel teams have been among the most dominant in the game. Carolina has reached the NCAA's Final Four seven times in that stretch. Only UCLA has been there more often in that same period.

In fact, Wooden is the only coach ever to make more Final Four appearances than Smith. In NCAA regional championships, Wooden is the leader with 12 followed by Smith with seven. The winningest coaches in NCAA Tournament play are Wooden (47 victories), Rupp (30) and Smith (27).

Carolina has been in the NCAA Tournament field each of the last nine seasons. That's the longest current streak going in the nation. The highlight of that streak came in 1982 when the Tar Heels defeated Georgetown, 63-62, in one of the most exciting and best-played NCAA championship games of all time.

Success like that was one of the reasons Smith was inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame last spring. He was taken into the state of North Carolina's Sports Hall of Fame a couple of years ago.

However, Smith's place among the great men of the game has been obvious for some time. Marquette Coach Rick Majerus touched on that last spring when a high school player he had been recruiting, Joe Wolf, accepted a scholarship to Carolina.

"Joe made a good choice," said Majerus. "North Carolina may very well be the best program in the country and Dean Smith may very well be the best coach of all time."

Such tributes from his peers are nothing new for Smith. For years rival coaches have talked about the consistency of his teams, the integrity of his program and the fact his players are also students.

"When you play against North Carolina and Dean Smith, that's the best," said James Madison Coach Lou Campanelli last season. "That's the epitome of college basketball.

"They represent everything you want—dedication, class, attitude. As we built our program at James Madison, we've paid a lot of attention to that. If that reflects in our style of play, that we resemble North Carolina, then I consider that a compliment."

Two seasons ago Virginia Coach Terry Holland touched more specifically on the consistency of Smith's teams in talking about the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"Because of the league we're in, it's difficult to stay at the top every year," he said. "Only one team, North Carolina, has been able to do that. The rest of us have a couple of good years, then we have to fight for a couple of years and put it back together."

Smith's teams have certainly stayed at the top. In the last 17 years Carolina has finished first in the ACC regular-season race 11 times and has been second the other six occasions. No other school in any conference has ever finished first or second in its league standings for such a long period. Two of those second-place teams actually won the league championship in the ACC Tournament.

The Tar Heels have won nine ACC Tournament titles in this same stretch. Carolina has won either the ACC regular-season or tournament championship 13 times in the past 17 seasons.

Despite his amazing success in the highly competitive ACC, Smith's most famous accomplishment probably came elsewhere. In 1976 he guided the United States Basketball Team to a sweep of the Summer Olympic Games in Montreal. In only a few weeks he molded a college all-star team into a closely-knit unit. Still the Americans faced the tremendous challenge of competing against international teams which had been playing together for years.

But, with Smith emphasizing a tough pressure defense and fast-breaking team play on offense, the United States regained the Gold Medal it had lost in the controversial 1972 Games.

Four of Smith's Tar Heels played key roles in the Olympic triumph—Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford. In fact, Smith has had players on each of the last five Olympic teams: Larry Brown in 1964, Charlie Scott in 1968, Bobby Jones in 1972 and Al Wood in 1980.

Smith's Olympic triumph ranks as another in a long line of remarkable accomplishments. In the last 17 years, his record is 430-106, a percentage of .802. That gives his teams an average record of 25-6 in that period. Smith's teams have won 25 games or more 11 times. The only other coach ever to have that many 25-win seasons was Wooden, who also had 11.

Carolina has now won at least 20 games for 13 consecutive seasons. That gives Smith the longest streak of consecutive 20-win seasons in history.

The Tar Heels have been to a national post-season tournament for 17 straight years. Carolina won the NIT in 1971.

How does Smith work all this magic?

It's a combination of things. He has tremendous rapport with his players, he is a master teacher and his style of play gets amazing results.

Former Marquette Coach Al McGuire may have put it best when he said, "If anyone was ever born to be a college coach, it's Dean Smith. He's the Jack Armstrong type person."

John Gerdy, a former star player at Davidson, echoed McGuire's feelings.

"My example of a great coach is Dean Smith and not because of his record," said Gerdy. "Instead, look at the classy way in which both he and his players handle themselves. The Tar Heel program is the classiest in college basketball.

"Smith's players speak of him with nothing but respect. He sees to it that his players graduate, and they know that he'll stand behind them during their playing days and, more importantly, afterward."

Carolina teams under Smith are known for unselfish play, great teamwork and a tenacious man-to-man defense. Although the Tar Heels specialize in a whirlwind, fast-breaking offense, they also have a disciplined attack and always rank among the national leaders in field goal percentage.

In an NCAA study of the 1970's, Carolina ranked first in the nation in field goal percentage and offensive efficiency, fifth in scoring and third in scoring margin.

That ranking of fifth in scoring is really no surprise. Although Smith is sometimes kidded about coaching "slowdowns" because of the four corners offense he uses late in some games, his teams usually rank among the scoring leaders.

Among Smith's many innovations are his run-and-jump defense, the mixing of pressure defenses, the point zone, team huddles at the foul line, the free lance passing game, the four corners offense and the scramble defense which first gained notoriety with the Dudley Bradley—led teams of the late 1970's and which has been extremely effective over the last three years—the best three-season period in school history.

"He is the most innovative, creative coach in college basketball," South Florida Coach Lee Rose once said of Smith. "Nobody is better. I've been coaching 20 years and I don't say that flippantly."

Smith's success at Carolina has been shared by those around him. Two of his former assistants, John Lotz and Kenny Rosemond, left Carolina to take head coaching jobs in the Southeastern Conference. Another former aide, Larry Brown, is now the head coach at Kansas. Smith's current assistants, Bill Guthridge and Eddie Fogler, have turned down head coaching jobs at major universities to remain in Chapel Hill. Smith, himself, has been offered numerous other coaching jobs, both on the college and professional level.

Interest of professional teams in Smith is no surprise. In the last 17 years alone, 26 of Smith's players have gone on to play pro basketball in this country and many others have played professionally in Europe.

Six of Smith's players have won pro rookie-of-the-year honors—Billy Cunningham, Charlie Scott, Robert McAdoo, Bobby Jones, Walter Davis and Phil Ford. It is no coincidence that so many Tar Heel players have been successful in the NBA. Carolina players seem to make the adjustment from college to the pros quite easily.

"Give me someone who has played for Dean Smith and I know they'll play hard every night," Cotton Fitzsimmons, coach of the Kansas City Kings, once said. "These North Carolina kids take losses seriously. They have a lot of pride and that's a good trait."

Bobby Jones once gave Smith credit for his professional career in an interview with THE NEW YORK TIMES.

"If I had gone to any other school, I probably would not have been in pro basketball," said Jones. "I was a shy and gangly kid, not very well coordinated when I began playing basketball in junior high school. At North Carolina they gave me the tools to play in the pros and I don't want to forget it."

Of course, Smith's players have performed pretty well in college as well as in the pros. He has had more All-Americas than any other active coach. He has had three players to win National Player-of-the-Year honors—Ford in 1978, Worthy in 1982 and Michael Jordan last season.

A native of Emporia, Kansas, Smith attended the University of Kansas on an academic scholarship. He played freshman football and varsity basketball and baseball there. He was a member of the Jayhawk basketball teams which won the national championship in 1952 and finished second in 1953.

Smith was assistant basketball coach and golf coach at the Air Force Academy in 1958 when he was brought to Carolina by Frank McGuire, then the Tar Heel coach. He served as one of McGuire's assistants until being named head coach in 1961. That followed McGuire's departure for the professional ranks.

In 1977 Smith was named National Coach of the Year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches. He received that same honor in 1979 from the U.S. Basketball Writers Association and Basketball Weekly and in 1982 from Medalist.

Smith is a great goodwill ambassador for the University. He is called upon to lecture at basketball clinics all over the world. He is a past president of the NABC and recently served on the NCAA Select Committee, which was appointed to study many of the problems facing intercollegiate athletics today. He was honored two years ago with the Golden Plate Award from the American Academy of Achievement.

In his spare time Smith enjoys golf, tennis, music and reading books on a variety of subjects. He has a special interest in theology.

Smith has five children. Daughters Sandy and Mrs. Sharon Kepley are Carolina graduates as is son Scott. He also has two younger daughters, Kristen Caroline and Kelly Marie. Smith's wife, Linnea, is a physician.

Bill Guthridge

Bill Guthridge is now in his 17th year as Dean Smith's top assistant at the University of North Carolina.

A 1960 graduate of Kansas State, Guthridge has been connected with great teams throughout his basketball career. He played on three Wildcat teams which won Big Eight championships and has been a part of some of the greatest seasons in Tar Heel history in his role on Smith's staff.

In fact, Guthridge has been to the NCAA's Final Four a total of eight times—six as an assistant at Carolina, once as an assistant at Kansas State and once as a player.

Guthridge first came to Chapel Hill for the 1967-68 season. The Tar Heels have been in a national post-season tournament in all 16 of his years here. In that 16-year period, Carolina has been first or second in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings each season, has won either the ACC regular-season or tournament title 12 times, won the NIT in 1971 and captured the NCAA championship in 1982.

Bill has a thorough knowledge of all aspects of his profession—teaching, organizing, motivating and recruiting. He works closely with Smith in all phases of the Tar Heel program.

"Bill is one of the top coaches in America, and that includes head coaches as well as assistants," says Smith. "His record as an assistant here and at Kansas State has been tremendous. He has made great contributions to both programs."

Guthridge was also a key factor in the United States' 1976 basketball triumph in the Summer Olympic Games. Bill, along with Georgetown's John Thompson, served as Smith's assistants on that coaching staff and also scouted the Americans' opponents.

His reputation is so outstanding that Guthridge's name is usually mentioned every time there is a major college coaching vacancy. He has turned down several head coaching jobs and has had his name withdrawn from consideration for others.

Guthridge has worked a great deal with both Carolina's offensive and defensive schemes. He is currently the Tar Heel shooting instructor. It is no coincidence that Carolina annually shoots better than 50 percent from the field. In fact, the Tar Heels have the best shooting percentage of any team in the country over the last dozen years.

"Not only is Bill an excellent teacher, but he's also a great basketball technician," says Smith. "He has a superb understanding of the game."

A native of Parsons, Kan., Guthridge played his high school basketball for Harold Johnson, one of two brothers who were innovators of the zone press in the 1930's.

At Kansas State he helped the Wildcats win Big Eight championships in 1958, 1959 and 1960. Based on his leadership, academic record and athletic accomplishments, he was chosen one of the University's 13 most outstanding all-around seniors.

Following graduation, Guthridge coached for two years at Scott City (Kansas) High before returning to his alma mater as an assistant to Tex Winter. During his time on the KSU staff, the Wildcats posted a 93-43 record, swept two Big Eight titles and once advanced to the Final Four.

In his first six years at Carolina, Guthridge coached Tar Heel freshman and junior varsity teams. He had a 72-25 record and won the Big Four championship four times, an outstanding feat in those days.

Smith gives him much of the credit for helping develop the players who have kept Carolina among the top basketball powers in the nation.

Beside working with Smith and Winter, two of the great names in coaching, Guthridge has also coached in Puerto Rico summer leagues for two years. He was once named coach-of-the-year and was invited to coach the Puerto Rican team in the 1968 Olympics.

Of course, Guthridge's greatest notoriety has come for his work at Carolina.

"Bill is highly respected by the players who have been through our program," says Smith, "He is sincere in his recruiting and I think that has made him a favorite of prospective student-athletes and their families. He is a man of great integrity."

Unlike many coaches, Guthridge says he actually enjoys recruiting.

"Some people say recruiting is undesirable, that it's the worst part of being a college coach," he says. "But my experiences have been very enjoyable. I think that has a lot to do with the type of young man which our university attracts."

Guthridge, who got his B.S. in mathematics, has a master's degree in education and has taken courses at Carolina toward his Ph.D.

While basketball is his game, Bill is also a close follower of other sports. When he can find some spare time, he likes to play golf.

Guthridge has an excellent sense of humor and is one of the most popular after-dinner speakers in the Carolina athletic department.

Bill and his wife, Leesie, have two sons, Jamie and Stuart, and a daughter, Megan.

Eddie Fogler

Heading into his 11th season on the Tar Heel staff is Eddie Fogler, who as a player and coach, has been involved in some of the greatest seasons in Carolina history.

Fogler played on Tar Heel teams which won Atlantic Coast Conference championships in 1968 and 1969, advancing to the NCAA's Final Four each year. In his 10 years as a full-time coach here, Carolina has won five more ACC Tournament titles and has finished first in the league's regular-season race six times.

Counting his appearances as both a player and coach, Fogler has now been to the Final Four a total of six times. Very few people in college basketball can match that figure.

"Eddie brings a bright mind to the coaching profession," says Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith. "He really was like an assistant coach on the floor in his playing days here when he quarterbacked some of our championship teams. He's a hard worker and has great enthusiasm for the sport.

"Most people in basketball know what a truly outstanding coach he is. Even more would recognize that fact if Bill Guthridge had taken one of the many head coaching jobs he's been offered over the years. Eddie is going to be a great college head coach."

Fogler has a solid background in fundamental basketball. He learned the game as a youngster in New York City against excellent competition. He is one of the few players ever to make the all-city team twice.

Eddie then played guard on Tar Heel teams from 1967 to 1970. A playmaking guard, Fogler is considered one of the best passers and ballhandlers in school history. He still ranks as one of Carolina's all-time assist leaders.

In his three varsity seasons, the Tar Heels won 73 games and lost only 18. That's an average of 24-6 each year. In addition to reaching the Final Four in 1968 and 1969, Carolina also played in the National Invitation Tournament in Fogler's senior season.

After receiving a bachelor's degree in mathematics in 1970, Fogler spent a year teaching and coaching at DeMatha High School in Washington, D.C. He was in charge of the DeMatha junior varsity.

He returned to Chapel Hill in the fall of 1971 as a graduate assistant on Smith's staff. Fogler worked that season with the Carolina freshmen and also helped with scouting and recruiting. He had his first coaching experience in the Final Four that year as Carolina reached the national semi-finals.

Fogler became a full-time assistant in 1973 and has made valuable contributions to the Tar Heel program. His work played a key role in helping Carolina reach the Final Four in 1977, 1981 and 1982. The Tar Heels, of course, won the national championship in 1982.

Fogler knows the game very well. He is an excellent teacher and a fine recruiter.

"Eddie has unusual sincerity in recruiting and he is an excellent recruiter because of that," says Smith. "He has a genuine love for the University and, as a result, he can present it well."

Like Guthridge, Fogler is a man in whom other schools show interest when they have a basketball staff opening. He has already received two head coaching opportunities at major universities, but has elected to remain in Chapel Hill.

Fogler, a bachelor, enjoys all sports. He plays tennis and has a great interest in college football.

Roy Williams

One of the best young coaches in college basketball is Roy Williams, who is beginning his sixth year as an assistant on Dean Smith's Carolina staff.

Williams has coached the junior varisty, worked with the varsity and assisted in recruiting during the last five seasons here. He has done an excellent job in all of those areas. In fact, he has had opportunities to take a top assistant's job at other schools, but has turned them down to remain at Carolina.

A native of Asheville, N.C., Williams played basketball and baseball at T.C. Roberson High School. He then played freshman basketball at Carolina durng the 1968-69 season. He is a 1972 Tar Heel graduate and also got his master's degree here.

Prior to returning to Chapel Hill and joining Smith's staff, Williams had spent five seasons as athletic director and head basketball coach at Owen High School in Swannanoa, N.C.

"Roy is a highly organized person who has all the characteristics of a great coach," says Smith. "He genuinely cares a great deal for his players. He has been instrumental in the success we've had here in recent years. I predict that, if given the opportunity, he will prove to be a great college head coach."

Williams has certainly proven to be a fine coach at Carolina. His junior varsity teams, made up of non-scholarship players, have fared well in games against junior colleges and prep schools. He has played teams such as Fork Union, which has had fine players, very close over the years. In fact, his jayvee team once played a Fork Union team which featured Melvin Turpin to a one-point game.

Williams is an avid golfer and shoots in the low 70's. Roy and his wife, Wanda, have a son, Scott, and a daughter, Kimberly.

The Student Activities Center

Beginning late next season the University of North Carolina will play its basketball games in the most modern arena in the country.

The 21,800-seat Student Activities Center is scheduled to open on campus sometime during the 1984-85 season. Plans call for the Tar Heels to move into the arena as soon as it is ready.

The opening of the Student Activities Center will mean more Carolina fans will get an opportunity to see the Tar Heels in action than ever in the past. The Center will seat more than twice as many people as Carmichael Auditorium. That means more seats for students, alumni, faculty and staff.

Housed in the Center will be the basketball arena, an Olympic-size 50-meter pool, dressing facilities for multi-school events and office space for athletic department staff.

Cost of the Center will be $30.5 million. All of that money is coming entirely from private sources. No state or federal money has been used in the construction.

Although raising that amount of money certainly ranks as one of the most ambitious and challenging efforts in the history of intercollegiate athletics, Carolina is well on its way to reaching that goal. The building fund was near $28.5 million as the current basketball season began.

The amazing thing about that figure is that it has been reached without a gift of over $1,000,000. Professional fund-raisers say it is quite unusual for so much money to be raised privately without one huge gift. That has not been the case at Carolina. Instead, over 2,200 different people have contributed to the building.

Actual construction began in August of 1982 on a site located just off Manning Drive behind Hinton James Dormitory. Set in a natural ravine, the Center's exterior earth-tone color will blend into the surroundings of the nearby woods and will be in keeping with the natural beauty of the campus.

The double-decked main area will accommodate 7,000 more fans than any other Atlantic Coast Conference facility. In addition, the Center will provide much needed space for physical education, recreation and intramurals.

Portions of the lower arena's stands will be constructed on a telescoping platform which, when retracted, will provide enough floor space for three full-length basketball courts set side-by-side. This versatile feature will greatly enhance the University's ability to attract major cultural, political and other non-athletic events to the campus.

Concerts, lectures, theatrical performance and graduation exercises are now limited to either the 1,740-seat Memorial Hall or the 10,000-seat Carmichael Auditorium. Neither of these facilities provides adequate acoustical control, floor space, lighting or perhaps most important of all, parking.

The Students Activities Center will be located next to an existing 600-space lighted parking lot. In all, there will be more than 4,000 parking spaces within walking distance of the building.

The Educational Foundation, Inc. is the organization which has directed the fund-raising efforts. For years, members of the Foundation have provided the support necessary to entirely fund the financial aid program of the Carolina Athletic Department. That scholarship program costs in excess of $1,000,000 annually.

Season ticket priority in the Student Activities Center will be granted to contributors who have made the building possible.

Certainly, there are few universities in the entire country which would have dared to undertake a project of such enormously challenging proportions. To have raised over 90 percent of the needed $30.5 million in such a short time is an indication of the loyalty alumni have for this university and the great respect in which the Tar Heel basketball program is held.

Carmichael Auditorium

The home of the North Carolina Tar Heels is Carmichael Auditorium, or "Blue Heaven" as it is known by Carolina fans.

It is not exactly a heaven for visiting teams, however, as few of them win in Chapel Hill. In fact, the Tar Heel record at home stands at 148-18 since the arena opened in 1965.

Carmichael is always packed with overflow crowds of partisan, enthusiastic Tar Heel fans. Every home game is sold out before the season begins. The only way a non-student can get a ticket to Carmichael is to be a large contributor to the Educational Foundation. Even pre-season scrimmages and exhibition games are sellouts.

Carmichael is located in the tall pine trees at the heart of the Carolina campus. It is considered one of the most beautiful basketball arenas in the country.

The auditorium has been the home of 11 Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship teams, nine ACC Tournament winners, seven NCAA regional champions and one NCAA champion.

Students wait in long lines for a chance to see a game in Carmichael. In fact, they often sleep outside the auditorium the night before tickets are distributed for games.

Several hundred seats were added to Carmichael after the 1975-76 season, pushing capacity to 10,000.

Most of the Carolina athletic offices are located in Carmichael. Athletic Director John Swofford and Basketball Coach Dean Smith have their offices there. The halls are lined with sketches of Carolina's most outstanding athletes and there are five trophy cases containing awards and pictures from all sports.

The auditorium is named for the late William D. Carmichael, Jr., one of the most popular gentlemen ever to serve on the University campus. He left a lucrative Wall Street business to become associated with Carolina.

In Chapel Hill, Carmichael was comptroller and later vice-president of the Consolidated University. He also served for a long time as the Consolidated University's acting president. He died in 1961.

The auditorium adjoins Woollen Gymnasium, long-time site of varsity competition and physical education and intramural activities.

Another magical moment in Carmichael: Michael Jordan hits a jumper at the buzzer; Carolina and Tulane go into overtime; the Tar Heels win in triple overtime.

Carolina's Greatest Players

From Cobb to Rosenbluth, from the "Blind Bomber" to the "Kangaroo Kid," from Dillon to Worthy. The list of basketball greats at the University of North Carolina is an all but endless one.

There have been scores of all-conference players, numerous All-Americas and six National Players of the Year. Many Tar Heel players have gone on to become superstars in professional basketball, as well.

All of this started back in 1911 when Carolina fielded its first team. Marvin Ritch captained that squad, but history does not tell us how great a player he was.

However, history does tell us a lot about Carolina's first great team—the 1924 national champions. The Tar Heels were 26-0 and led by Cartwright Carmichael, Jack Cobb and Monk McDonald.

While the style of play has changed drastically since then, these men are still recognized as three of Carolina's greatest stars. Cobb, in fact, is a member of the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame. He was a three-time All-America and the Helms National Player of the Year in 1926. Carmichael was twice named All-America and McDonald was an all-conference performer.

Although the Tar Heels did not have an All-America like Cobb or Carmichael in the 1930's, there were many outstanding players. Ivan (Jack) Glace, Earl Ruth, Virgil Weathers, Tom Alexander, Jim McCachren and Stewart (Snooks) Aitken made the All-Southern Conference team during that decade.

The big star of the early 1940's was George Glamack—"the Blind Bomber." Glamack had terrible eyesight and could barely see the basket while standing right under it. However, he developed the uncanny sense of knowing where the hoop was in relation to his position on the court. He perfected a hook shot which he used with either hand and with great accuracy. He was a two-time All-America and Helms Player of the Year in 1941. He's now in the Hall of Fame.

All-America John (Hook) Dillon was the star of the 1946 team which lost to Oklahoma A&M and big Bob Kurland in the national finals. Dillon, however, had an excellent supporting cast in Jim Jordan, Bones McKinney, Jim White and Bob Paxton. Jordan, in fact, had been an All-America in 1945 and the Most Valuable Player in the Southern Conference.

Eleven years later the Tar Heels again reached the national finals. This time they won the NCAA title, defeating Wilt Chamberlain and Kansas in a triple-overtime thriller that rates among the greatest college games ever.

Lennie Rosenbluth was the star of that team. He was named National Player of the Year as Carolina went 32-0. Other starters on that unforgettable team were Pete Brennan (an All-America the following season), Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg and Bob Cunningham.

The stars were many during the 1960's. Big Lee Shaffer was the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year in 1960. Shaffer was a great scorer and later was an all-star performer in the National Basketball Association with the Syracuse Nationals.

York Larese and Doug Moe also starred for the Tar Heels in the early part of the decade. Larese ranks as one of the greatest free throw shooters in Carolina history. Moe was a sensational all-around star and now coaches in the NBA.

A teammate of Moe's was Larry Brown, a dimunitive guard who rates as one of Carolina's finest playmakers. Brown played on the 1964 U.S. Olympic team which swept the Gold Medal.

Billy Cunningham, a three-time All-ACC selection, was the next star on the Carolina scene. He made All-America in 1965. The "Kangaroo Kid" went on to become a great professional star with the Philadelphia 76ers and now coaches that team.

Bob Lewis, a thin sharpshooter from Washington, D.C., followed Cunningham into the Tar Heel spotlight. He holds the Carolina single-game scoring record with 49 points against Florida State.

Next came Larry Miller, an All-America in 1968 when he led his team to the national finals where the Tar Heels lost to Lew Alcindor and UCLA. Miller twice was named the ACC Player of the Year. At 6-4 and 215 pounds, he was a rugged performer who dazzled crowds with driving layups and a great variety of shots.

Bill Bunting, Rusty Clark and Dick Grubar were starters on Carolina teams which won three straight ACC regular-season and tournament championships, swept three Eastern Regionals in a row and went to the final four in the nation.

Bunting had a great senior season and made All-ACC. Grubar was one of the most popular athletes to wear Carolina Blue and was a sparkling playmaker and defender. Clark was a tough defensive player and a great rebounder.

Then there was Charlie Scott, who excelled in every phase of the game. He made All-America in his senior season and was voted ACC Athlete of the Year. In 1968 he starred for the United States in the Olympic Games.

Three fine frontcourt players—Bill Chamberlain, Dennis Wuycik and Robert McAdoo—sparked Carolina teams in the early 1970's. Chamberlain was the Most Valuable Player in the 1971 National Invitation Tournament as the Tar Heels swept that title. Wuycik was a fine shooter and an aggressive rebounder. McAdoo had a great shooting touch and was an excellent rebounder. They led the Tar Heels to the NCAA's Final Four in 1972.

Another All-ACC performer in that period was George Karl, a three-year starter and a highly popular player. He amazed fans with his daring and diving on the court.

One of the most complete players to play the college game was Bobby Jones.

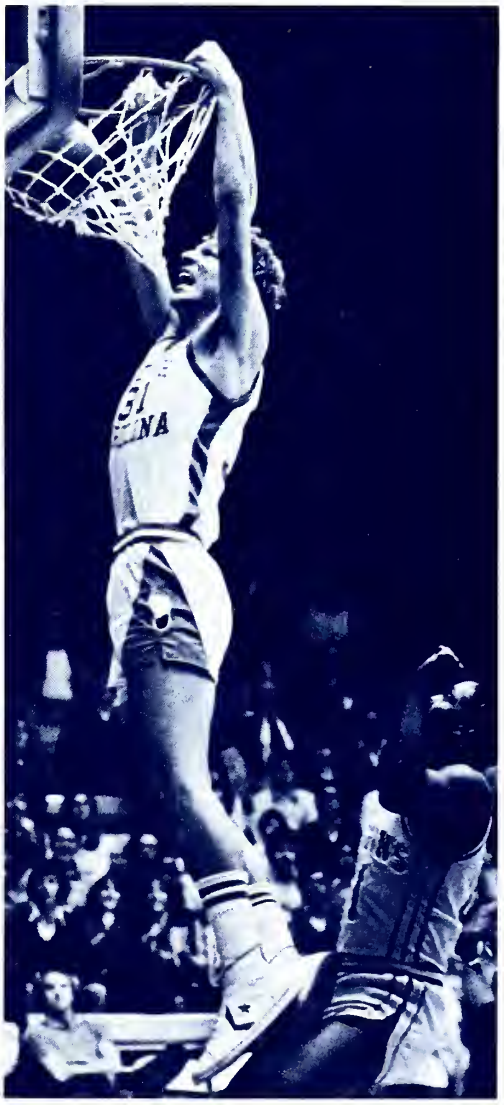
Al Wood



Mike O'Koren

Jones had great quickness and was a superb defender. He's one of the NBA's biggest stars.

Another great all-around player was Mitch Kupchak, the 1976 ACC Player of the Year. Mitch led the Tar Heels to a 25-4 record in his senior season and played a key role in the Washington Bullets' 1978 NBA championship.

Then came Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and John Kuester. They played on Carolina teams which won 98 games and lost only 23. All three were excellent defensive players and good shooters.

Davis, in fact, is regarded as one of the greatest clutch players in Carolina history. He's a former NBA Rookie of the Year and an all-pro performer. Kuester was the Most Valuable Player in both the ACC Tournament and the Eastern Regionals as a senior. LaGarde was an All-America on the team chosen by the pro coaches.

And, of course, there was Phil Ford. He was National Player of the Year as a senior and is the all-time Carolina leader in both points and assists. He has been called the greatest guard ever to play the college game. Phil also won NBA Rookie of the Year honors.

One of the best defensive players at Carolina, or anywhere else for that matter, was Dudley Bradley. A first-round pro draft choice, Bradley was the MVP in the 1979 ACC Tournament.

The next big stars were a trio of dynamic forwards—Mike O'Koren, Al Wood and James Worthy. O'Koren was the sixth player chosen in the 1980 NBA draft after putting together a brilliant Carolina career. He and Miller are the only two Carolina players to rank among the school's top 10 in scoring, rebounding and assists.

Wood capped a sensational four years by leading the Tar Heels to the 1981 NCAA championship game. He set an NCAA record with 39 points against Virginia in the national semi-finals. Always a great shooter, Wood developed into a complete player at Carolina. He was the first senior selected in the NBA draft following his final year.

Worthy was named Co-National Player of the Year with Ralph Sampson by First Interstate Bank (Helms) in 1982. He led the Tar Heels to a 32-2 record and the NCAA championship. Worthy saved perhaps the greatest performances of his career for the stretch drive that year, being named MVP in the ACC Tournament, the Eastern Regionals and the Final Four. He had a career-high 28 points against Georgetown in the NCAA Finals and was the first player selected in the 1982 NBA draft.

Other starters on that championship team were Jimmy Black and three current Tar Heel stars—Sam Perkins, Matt Doherty and Michael Jordan. Perkins heads into his senior season as one of the most honored players in school history. He's already a two-time first-team All-America. Doherty is one of the most under-rated players in college basketball, while Jordan was named National Player of the Year last season by The Sporting News.

The University

A beautiful campus has done much to earn for the University of North Carolina the name "Southern part of Heaven," but the University's renown for exterior splendor long has been equaled by its reputation as one of the world's foremost academic and research institutions.

The 1982 "New York Times Selective Guide to Colleges" reports that, "UNC looks like a college campus with football-field size quads and tree-lined walks," but the guide also praises the University for its academic excellence, awarding its highest rating for academics.

Other reports durings 1982 and 1983 have agreed.

In a comprehensive evaluation report published by the National Academy of Sciences, the University was ranked as one of the foremost graduate and research institutions in the nation. In the South, Carolina consistently ranked at or near the very top.

In the humanities, Carolina's ranking was the best in the region, with programs in art history, classics, music and philosophy all ranked first. The program in German was rated second, and Spanish tied for third.

In the behavioral and social sciences, Carolina ranked first in the Southeast in both political science and sociology and was second in history and psychology.

The University had the top-rated math and physical science programs in biostatistics, statistics and chemistry, placed second in computer science and tied for second in math and geology in the region. All of Carolina's programs in the biological sciences were ranked in the top 25 percent nationally.

"For those who are alumni of the University, these studies are another indication of the preeminence of your faculty in the southeastern United States," Chancellor Christopher C. Ford III said, " and they indicate once again that the faculty at the University is comparable with the great Ivy League schools of the East and the great public universities of the Midwest and Far West."

The Old Well

In other studies, University programs in business administration, education, journalism, law, physical therapy and recreation administration have received high national rankings, and the schools of medicine, dentistry and nursing have received the most favorable accreditation reports.

Most recently, in a Change magazine survey of American graduate schools, Carolina received the 18th highest ranking overall among Ph.D.-granting institutions in the arts, sciences and engineering and was first in the Southeast. The University ranked first in the South in specific rankings for the humanities and for the social and behavioral sciences.

Carolina's academic excellence also remains affordable. Money magazine recently listed the University as one of the 10 best state schools nationally for getting an excellent education at an affordable price.

The research funds a university attracts are another measure of its prominence. During fiscal year 1982, University researchers received federal and other grants and contracts of $66,121,583, representing 19 percent of all Carolina income. In rankings of institutions receiving federal money for research and programs, Carolina has ranked consistently in the top 25 in the nation for the last decade.

Out of that research in the past year came major findings, including the link between salt intake, stress and high blood pressure; the unreliability of marijuana detection tests; the decline in the academic ability of public school teachers; and the characteristics of those most and least likely to pay their income taxes.

Scholarship in the humanities produced numerous significant publications, and a volume issued by the University of North Carolina Press won a Pulitzer Prize last year.

The faculty also has been cited for quality by the number of its members inducted into prestigious societies, elected to national office in scholarly and professional organizations and honored by peers in other ways.

Carolina also can take pride in the quality of its 22,000 students. Average applicants from North Carolina ranked in the top 10 to 12 percent of their high school classes. The keen competition for out-of-state spots in the class of 1987 attests to the University's national reputation. In 1983 only 11 percent of the non-alumni, out-of-state applicants were admitted. On the average, successful out-of-state applicants were in the top 1 percent of their high school classes and had SAT scores of about 1360.

The University recruits bright, well-rounded students through its Morehead, Pogue, Johnston and other scholarship programs. Carolina ranks high among the colleges and universities producing Rhodes Scholars, and many of its Rhodes Scholars in recent years first came to the University as Morehead Scholars.

Not only is Carolina a school of national academic reputation, but its students also have won their share of academic titles. Carolina students were the 1982 national College Bowl champions, and in 1983, when no championship was held, they were among the teams reaching the final round. An undergraduate also won the top national prize in 1982 for interpretive speaking.

Students are provided the best possible atmosphere for learning, from a library system ranked first in the Southeast to an athletic program encompassing excellence in varsity sports and an opportunity for all to participate in intramural activities.

The New York Times guide's overall ranking, which included academics, social life and quality of life, placed Carolina on a level exceeded by only three other schools in the nation.

Students who leave Carolina take roles of prominence across the spectrum of life. Gov. James B. Hunt and 30 of his predecessors have been alumni, as have a president, a vice-president, an acting vice-president and numerous other high government officials.

The University ranks 13th nationally among state universities and land grant colleges in the number of alumni who are chief executives of the 500 largest U.S. corporations, and others are business and community leaders across the state and nation.

In all, more than 60 percent of the 127,000 living alumni of the University live in North Carolina.

Other notable alumni across the country include novelist Walker Percy, Academy Award-winning actress Louise Fletcher, actor Andy Griffith, Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist Jeff MacNelly and journalists Vermont Royster (former editor of the Wall Street Journal), Tom Wicker (N.Y. Times), Charles Kuralt (CBS news) and Roger Mudd (NBC news).

Increasingly important is the University's work directed toward assuring the continued excellence of its future students and alumni. Carolina has taken a leadership role nationally as a forerunner in working with public schools in academics, with more than a score of innovative programs underway.

Included among these is the Lyndhurst Fellowship Program, which provides support for talented students who intend to teach match, science and English. Other programs to improve the teaching of math and science have been conducted for several years by the faculty members in the School of Education and the College of Arts and Sciences.

Those efforts and others are in keeping with the character of the University at Chapel Hill, which Chancellor Fordham has described in the words "integrity, excellence, high performance, a commitment to public service and public well-being, and belief in a strong, progressive voice in the affiars of society."

The Educational Foundation

One of the most important organizations in the Carolina Athletic Department is the University's Educational Foundation.

It is the Educational Foundation which makes possible all athletic scholarships awarded by Carolina.

As the Tar Heel sports program has grown through the years, the Foundation has done likewise. It currently has over 6,200 members who finance a scholarship program that costs $1,500,000 a year.

"Since its inauguration in 1938, the Foundation has provided scholarships, either partial or full, for over 3,000 student-athletes," says Ernie Williamson, the Foundation's executive vice-president.

Williamson feels the overall bonus of being a Foundation member is helping a worthy young student obtain a college education. He says the high caliber young athlete who is awarded a scholarship is a great representative of the University.

Any donation to the Foundation is welcome. However, membership in the Rams Club is restricted to those who contribute $150 or more.

Carolina was one of the first schools in the nation to set up an endowment program for athletics. This program was started in 1968 and has already surpassed the $7,000,000 mark.

The endowment program consists of $50,000 endowed scholarships, life memberships of $15,000 and $30,000, wills and bequests and a new dimension—a pooled income fund. Under the pooled income plan, a member gives a principal sum to the Foundation and then receives the interest off that during the remainder of his life.

A special room on the south wing of Kenan Fieldhouse serves as a meeting place for Rams and their families. This area is open two hours before football games and provides a lounge and picnic area for those who come early.

The Foundation operates on a dignified and realistic plane in compliance with all of the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Other members of the Foundation staff are Moyer Smith, John Cherry and Neal Harrell. Along with Williamson, Mary Baggett, Kaye Koenig, Jean Gunter and Terri Bare, they have made the Foundation better able to serve its members.

"We couldn't have the type program we do without the Educational Foundation membership," says Athletic Director John Swofford. "We've enlarged our staff in the last two years and I think the staff additions we made will enable us to do a better job for our members."

Neal Harrell

The man who stands at the helm of the Educational Foundation is popular Ernie Williamson, the executive vice-president.

The former star Carolina tackle is one of the most active individuals on the Tar Heel sports scene. He is constantly on the go—talking with Foundation members, speaking to prospective members or avidly following all of Carolina's athletic teams.

Williamson is a Carolina graduate with A.B. and M.A. degrees. The native of Crewe, Va. played one season of football here under Carl Snavely and was regarded as an outstanding tackle. He was lured away to professional football and played with New York and Washington before a knee injury ended his career.

Williamson returned to Chapel Hill to finish work on his degrees and then went to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. He was an assistant coach there for two years and head coach for three seasons.

He returned to Carolina in 1957 to accept his present position. At one time he also served as a recruiter for the football program.

Williamson is highly respected in his field. He has served three terms as president of the National Association of Athletic Fund-Raisers.

Ernie is married to the former Elva Smith of Lawrenceville, Va. They have a son, Wayne, and a daughter, Carole.
